

Index

Introduction: Theology of the Body and Contemporary Culture ..	13
1. A crisis of truth.....	13
2. A revolution that has triumphed?	13
3. “Secular individualism” and instrumental reason: the demise of marriage and family?	17
4. A weakened institution.....	20
5. A broad analysis: two malaises of modern culture.....	21
a. Individualism: a culture of self-fulfillment.....	22
b. The rise of instrumental reason.....	26
6. Rethinking the sexual revolution	34
7. Theology of the body works on the ground.....	41
8. Theology of the body and the depths of the person.....	42
9. Structure and goal of the present work	42
Part One: A Profound thinker in Dialogue.....	47
Chapter One: In Dialogue with Thomas and Tradition: A Realist Epistemology and Metaphysics	49
1. Aquinas and trust in experience.....	49
2. Three currents of Thomism.....	50
3. Knowing: a realistic vision of a mysterious human reality.....	53
4. What is knowledge?	54
5. The process of knowing and the validity of knowledge	55
a. The knowing subject	55
b. The validity of sense knowledge.....	57
c. The process of sense knowledge	59
d. Intellectual knowledge	62
e. Simple apprehension	63

Index

f. Abstraction and the apprehension of singulars	64
g. The validity of simple apprehension	67
6. Truth in judgments: the validity of existential knowledge	71
7. An existential metaphysics of being	81
Chapter Two: In Dialogue with Personalism	87
1. Personalism in light of common and proper conceptions.....	87
2. What is personalism?	92
3. A brief history of personalism: nineteenth and twentieth centuries	95
4. Patristic and medieval roots of personalism	100
5. Scriptural foundations of personalism	103
a. Fostering the personal dignity of infants, children, and the aged	103
b. Establishing the equal personal dignity of women	104
c. Gospel foundations of the personalistic principle.....	107
6. Main characteristics of personalistic thought — and John Paul II’s enduring applications	108
a. Radical difference between persons and nonpersons — created for communion.....	109
b. Absolute dignity of persons — and absolute moral norms	110
c. The subjectivity of embodied persons — and the truth of sexuality	112
d. The person as an end and never as a mere means — Love is the answer.....	115
e. The relational aspect of the person — love as the gift of self...	123
Chapter Three: The Mystical Personalism of St. John of the Cross: the “Living Flame” of St. John Paul II’s “Trinitarian Personalism of Self-Gift”	131
1. A crucial encounter: the mystic Jan Tyranowski.....	131
2. St. John of the Cross: a mystical personalism.....	134
a. Two guiding principles in St. John of the Cross and Wojtyła: the personal and the social	135

Index

1) The personalistic norm in Wojtyła and Kant: freedom fulfilled or restricted?	137
2) The social principle: the gift of self and human fulfillment .	141
b. The origin of the two guiding principles in Wojtyła/John Paul II	143
1) Kant’s view of the sexual act vindicated in contraception: The spouse as a thing	146
2) The sexual act outside of marriage: One’s “lover” as a thing	157
3. The sources of John Paul II’s personalism: Returning to St. John of the Cross	159
a. Personal subjectivity	159
1) Lived experience in John of the Cross.....	161
2) Lived experience in John Paul II	166
3) Lived experience in theology of the body	177
— Karol Wojtyła and Humanae Vitae 12	178
— Humanae Vitae fifty years out.....	180
b. The gift of self	184
Chapter Four: Confronting Kant’s “Anti-Trinitarian Personalism of Autonomy”	189
1. The Background: Wojtyła at the Catholic University of Lublin ...	189
2. The basic lines of phenomenology.....	191
3. Wojtyła’s personal method of phenomenology	193
4. Max Scheler’s emotionalist ethics of values vs. Kant’s formalist ethics	194
5. Kant’s Critical Turn: Reconciling British Empiricism and Continental Rationalism.....	199
6. The Crisis of the Enlightenment and the Project of the Critique of Pure Reason	204
a. A Copernican revolution	205
b. A new, reductionist version of metaphysics.....	209
7. A critique of Kant’s transcendental idealism	210
8. The transcendental deduction.....	213

Index

9. A different perspective from Kant: a phenomenological approach to self-consciousness.....	213
a. Pre-reflective self-consciousness vs. reflective self-consciousness.....	213
b. Self-consciousness of real human persons in the world	217
c. A metaphysical perspective: the self which undergirds pre-reflective self-consciousness	218
10. Self-consciousness according to Kant: A formalistic and idealistic conception.....	219
a. Judgment and understanding.....	221
b. The law-giver of nature.....	222
11. Kant's moral theory.....	223
a. Theoretical and practical autonomy	223
b. Freedom and the fact of reason.....	227
c. A good will and the categorical imperative.....	230
12. Toward an empirical and normative ethics: Synthesizing the truths of Scheler and Kant.....	234
Part Two: Self-transcendence and the Truth about the Good: Person and Act	235
Chapter Five: Wojtyła's Introduction to Person and Act: Lived Experience as the Path to the Person	237
1. Preliminary note: Problems with the English translation, The Acting Person	237
2. Wojtyła's project	241
a. Wojtyła as a thinker.....	242
b. Ethics and the human person: establishing a basic link.....	243
— Ethics and the philosophy of being.....	245
c. Situating consciousness within the human suppositum	249
3. Wojtyła's Thomistic use of a modified phenomenological method	250
a. A Christian thinker cannot be a phenomenologist.....	250
b. Lived experience for Wojtyła vs. phenomenological experience	252

Index

c. Lived experience vs. reductionist scientism.....	255
d. Induction for Wojtyła vs. intuition of necessary essences as the path to knowledge.....	258
e. Induction leads to reduction.....	260
4. The goal and parameters of the study.....	263
a. Wojtyła’s aim.....	263
b. Penetrating more deeply into lived experience.....	267
c. Structure of Person and Act	272
d. What motivated the writing of Person and Act ?.....	273
Chapter Six: Consciousness in the Person.....	275
1. Approaching consciousness through act.....	275
a. Act within the Aristotelian-Thomistic tradition.....	276
b. Wojtyła’s approach: from actus humanus to the person behind the act.....	277
c. Unveiling consciousness in the structure of conscious action ..	278
2. Consciousness and self-knowledge.....	279
a. The dependence of consciousness on intentional knowledge of the objectively real.....	279
b. Self-knowledge as the foundation of self-consciousness.....	281
3. The two-fold function of consciousness and the lived experience of one’s own subjectivity.....	282
a. The mirroring and illuminating function of consciousness.....	283
b. The reflexive function of consciousness: our acts as our own..	284
c. A firm, realistic theory of consciousness.....	287
d. Consciousness of our acts and moral values.....	289
4. The emotionalization of consciousness.....	290
5. Subjectivity versus subjectivism.....	292
Chapter Seven: Efficacy.....	297
1. Coming to grasp man’s dynamism.....	297
2. The specific nature of efficacy.....	298

Index

3. The synthesis of efficacy and subjectivity: Man as suppositum ...	301
4. Person and nature: from antithesis to integration	304
5. Coming to be and freedom.....	311
a. Man becomes morally good or bad through his own acts.....	312
b. Freedom as the root of man's becoming good or bad.....	313
Chapter Eight: Self-Determination and the Transcendence of the Person in the Act	317
1. Self-determination and self-fulfillment: Introduction to Part II of Person and Act	317
2. "The personal structure of self-determination:" An in-depth vision of Part II	319
a. Experience, self-determination, and the will.....	319
b. Horizontal and vertical transcendence: explaining the reality of moral values.....	321
c. Self-determination, self-possession, and self-governance	323
d. Self-fulfillment and the "law of the gift"	325
3. Some fundamental considerations on self-determination	326
4. The integral dynamism of the will	329
a. Self-determination and the will as a property of the whole person.....	330
b. The objectifying of the subject in individual acts of willing	331
c. Objectification and subjectification.....	335
5. Free will: the basis of the transcendence of the person in the act.	336
a. Freedom as a real quality of the person	336
b. Freedom as dependence on one's own "I"	337
c. Horizontal and vertical transcendence	338
6. The will as the faculty of self-determination	339
7. Decision and motivation	341
8. Freedom and the truth about the good	346
Part Three: The Gift of Self in Love	353

Index

Chapter Nine: Personalism and Theology of the Body	355
1. Freedom and fulfillment: the role of conscience.....	355
2. Conscience in Thomas, Kant, and Wojtyła	359
3. Conscience, duty, and trueness	368
4. Duty: the call to self-fulfillment.....	378
a. Duty and the fulfillment of the person in his acts	378
b. The creative nature of conscience.....	381
5. Personalism and theology of the body: bringing men and women to Christ.....	383
Conclusion: Theology of the Body: the Culmination of John Paul II's Personalism	387
1. An adequate anthropology: theology of the body builds on philosophical personalism.....	387
2. Personhood and freedom.....	389
3. The truth about the good and the gift of self.....	390
4. Wojtyła's embodied personalism and the spousal meaning of the body.....	391
5. Christ appeals to the human heart: a realistic theological anthropology	392
6. Defending Humanae Vitae : the truth of love's self-gift.....	393
BIBLIOGRAPHY	395